QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 13 .- Passengers on board the Cunard liner Caronia, which arrived here today, are congratulating themselves over a narrow escape

While the leviathan was working her way by Roche's Point, early this morning, a fire was discovered in the electric fan room. The passengers were sound asleep in their staterooms and Captain Barr, fearing a panic, ordered the fire were piped to stations and the life boats were swung from the davits preparatery to deserting the ship and landing passengers in case the fire gained headway.

The fire was obstinate, and the smoke was wafted through the passageways. Several passengers awoke and looked out, but men who had posted themselves in the passages, told everyone that nothing was wrong. After a struggle for over two hours, the fire was extinguished at 4 o'clock. Many passengers did not know of the threatened peril until breakfast.

There are three in the District, one at 118 M street southwest, another at 60 street northwest, another at 60 street northwest, another at 60 street northwest, and a third at 2255 Ninth street northwest. Mrs. Giffillan has taken up the work voluntarily and told many interesting things about the great good that the day nurseries are doing.

Charles F. Weller, secretary of the Associated Charities, outlined the work of that organization and gave the society a clear idea of its efforts. He said the primary object is to bring more thought to bear upon the problems of a needy people, and with this n view the society, which is one of 170 of its kind in this country, organizes ts work.

Mr. Delmas has come from California to participate in the trial. Yesterday, he made final arrangements with Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the prisoner, and received his retainer. Half an hour later he was with Thaw in the Tombs, when the plan of defense was outlined. Mr. Delmas has a national reputation, earned in many hard-fought cases. He has been successful in several instances of clearing clients under the "unwritten law" plea in California. It is reported he will receive $100,000 for his services.

Her make-up was good. Her voice was soft, but it might have been that of a young boy. Her long hair had been sacrificed and what was left was nearly parted. SOME SHOCKING CONDITIONS

286 inhabited alley houses, 19,076 of Washington's population.

Thousands of servants and laborers bring into close contact insanitary alley conditions and healthy homes. Overcrowding is evident in a tenement where forty families occupy fifty-four rooms.

Light, ventilation, and play space are at a premium when a tenement on an interior lot measures 40 by 208

Present regulations fail to compel sufficient light, air, and place for children's play in new buildings.

High rents charged the poorer people place a premium upon overcrowding.

The campaign for improving housing conditions for the poorer people has started in this fall with vigor. The Contributions to Cause ommittee of citizens organized for this purpose has just issued a circular in which it states that last year an important start was made which will lead to the elimination of Washington's alley slums; that a law was secured for the condemnation of the miserable insanitary houses; that co-operation between the committee and the District departments has enabled the committee to report in systematic manner abuses which are evident to those who are in constant confact with the people who live in these unhealthful surroundings.

Despondent Over III Health W. T. Henning Ends Life at Home.

Discouraged over continued ill health, and dreading an operation which was to have been performed today, William T. Henning, forty-three years old, a plasterer, living at 801 D street southeast, committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid. He was removed to the Casualty Hospital, where he died two hours later. While his wife was clearing away the supper dishes, Hening sat down at the kitchen table, and, coolly raising a phisl of the poison to his lips, drank half of the contents.

Handing the bottle to Mrs. Henning, he said: "Wife, you finish the rest of this." He staggered into the parlor, while the woman summoned help. When the ambulance arrived the man was unconscious. and dreading an operation which was

DINNER TO HEARST BY LABOR UNIONS

Central Body Appoints Committee to Make Arrangements for Event.

William Randolph Hearst is to be honored by a reception from organized la-bor in the District of Columbia when he comes to Wishington to resume his legislative duties at the Capitol, in December. This was practically decided on at last night's meeting of the Cen-tral Labor Union. In a stirring speech of about ten minutes, J. H. Brinkman, delegate from the Carriage and Wagon Workers' Union, said he had been dele gated by his organization to ask that organized labor in the District show its appreciation for what Mr. Hearst had done for them by giving him a recep-tion on his arrival here in December.

On motion of Delegate Brinkman for the appointment of a committee the following were named: Messrs. Brinkman, chairman; Feeney, Adams, Roberts, Weber, McKimey, Potter, Beaumont, Shugrue, and Winslow. This committee, after arrangements have been completed will be increased so as to include one member from each local.

J. L. Feeney, of the Bookbinders Union, who spent the last week of the campaign in New York, said that organized labor made a splendid showing. Mr. Feeney asserted that labor would have in the next House of Representatives ten members with union cards in their pockets and ten men who are known as stanch advocates of union labor. In every district, he said, where organized labor made a fight against the re-election of a candidate, the vote was cut. The complaint of the commercial telegraphers against the practice of allowing Government telegraphers to accept employment from the commercial companies, thus reducing the opportunity of telegraphers who are on the waiting or sub list, again came up for discussion. Delegate Feeney, who is on the committee to investigate this grievance, said he would secure the names of the Government telegraphers who work after hours, and present the matter to the President on his return from Panama.

The report of the committee on the
